

Some value. I will clean house and go to a museum on Thursday - and perhaps see Janet. Friday I shall take the three o'clock train. I think it arrives at 7:35, though I can't remember for sure and have lost my time-table. I do not know yet where I shall be staying, but in any case I shall want to see you Friday evening, if it is convenient for you.

The concerts sound lovely, though I shall probably not be there for the Sunday one. All my other plans can probably be executed while you are in the library - though I must see Dercdre Butler next Saturday or Sunday, whenever she has time, since she flies back to Paris the following week.

3-14-50

I fell asleep last night without finishing this or my work. There are tests to be corrected and a list of topics for the Modern History